

For Immediate Release:
October 22, 2008

Contact: Melanie Lyons, 202-824-7205
Lauren Blossé, 202-824-7204

MEDIA ADVISORY

American Gas Foundation to Hold Reporter Roundtable on the Ability of the U.S. to Compete in the Global LNG Marketplace

Washington, D.C. – The American Gas Foundation (AGF) will hold a breakfast briefing for reporters to release its new study, the Ability of the United States to Compete in the Global LNG Marketplace: An Assessment of Challenges and Opportunities. The report's author, Benjamin Schlesinger of Benjamin Schlesinger and Associates, Inc. (BSA) will be on hand to discuss the findings of the adequacy of the world's LNG producing capacity to meet the needs of the U.S. natural gas industry and the current and likely future competitiveness of the U.S. in the global marketplace over the next decade. BSA prepared the study in conjunction with Potem & Partners, Inc. and Altos Management Partners, Inc.

Schlesinger will be joined in the briefing by Chris McGill, Managing Director of Policy Analysis for American Gas Association, who will provide AGA's perspective on the study.

When: Tuesday, October 28
9:30 a.m.

Where: American Gas Association Offices
400 North Capitol Street, NW
4th floor
Washington, DC

Speakers: Jay Copan, Executive Director, American Gas Foundation
Chris McGill, Managing Director of Policy Analysis, American Gas Association
Benjamin Schlesinger, President, Benjamin Schlesinger and Associates, Inc.

Breakfast will be available.

Founded in 1989, the AGF is a 501(c)(3) organization focused on being an independent source of information research and programs on energy and environmental issues that affect public policy, with a particular emphasis on natural gas. Overseen by a board of trustees, the AGF has delivered numerous key public policy reports since 2000 and has sponsored executive level forums and events focusing on energy supply. For more information, please visit www.gasfoundation.org.